Emerson High School — 1907-1949 — ever growing in size and spirit. I am its backbone, the cement between its bricks ; I am Emer, dear old Emers' son.

THE

Emer, The Cement Between The Bricks

From the first blowing of the bugle to the last, through chemistry and math, band and gym, to lunch and back again, through English and finally up to music — these are the things that make the spirit live. I am that spirit, living in all of my Emers' sons and daughters.

Although I haven't been seen, I was the one who ran up the scores at my games, I ate with my sons and daughters, and played in their band. I live in the hearts of all of them, from their first day until they walk that last mile down graduation aisle.

Building healthy brains is the task of my teachers. Implant good principles in freshmen brains, and they will grow to be senior brains that are rational and ever inquisitive.

You gotta stay healthy. In every bite of food, my sons and daughters receive nourishment, for I am within their food giving them the strength that befits an Emers' son or daughter.

Music is just one of my forms of extra-curricular work into which my students may fit. They find me, too, in shop, band, auditorium, art, and gym.

Working, studying, and playing, these students carry on from day to day, through each week of the school year, aiming at one goal—graduation!

On these pages and between these lines lies my story. Here in all the glory of Emers' sons and daughters will shine.

Dear Mom,
I wish you all the luck in the world and I think a good young man will be a bridge to the future

Dear Mom,
Best of wishes
through your school years and later in life.

Emer, The Major Domo

Years in succession my principals and teachers come back to find me waiting. Through every stroke of their pencil, every admit they sign, I appear, reminding them that they, too, are dear old Emers' sons.

Top picture: Mr. Spaulding and students entertain visitors during Education Week. Bottom picture: Mrs. Agnes Fonville, home visitor, and Miss Adeline Golkowski, nurse, give a student a hearing test. Mrs. Fonville has been Emerson's Child Welfare Department representative for two years, while Miss Golkowski is new to Emerson this year.

Emer's Son, Mr. Spaulding

Yes, indeed! Emers' son—Emers' oldest son—and rightly so. Mr. Spaulding has been principal of Emerson for thirty-six years. If that record doesn't warrant the title nothing else will. During this span of years think of all the younger sons he has seen come and go. No one will ever know the number of boys and girls who have come out of Mr. Spaulding's office with new ambitions because of a talk with him, but everyone knows that without this man of understanding, Emerson would be a pretty dismal place.

Doctor Lee Gilbert, another promising son of Emer, has been assistant-principal of the high school for two years. He is also principal of the grade school and as such suffers his many headaches. In his two years at Emerson, Dr. Gilbert has shown an eagerness to help and to make improvements when necessary.

Mr. Thornton Hooper was initiated to Emerson this year. His work has been new to the students and maybe some of them were a little leary of him at first. Mr. Hooper soon calmed their fears of him, though, and lost no time in acquainting himself with the students and faculty. His official title is Guidance Counselor; main job—informing students of jobs, offering advice on vocations, schools, personal problems, or in general, assisting students in any way possible.

The two office staffs have the jobs of checking and filing the school's records and taking care of the secretarial needs of the principals. They carry out the business transactions of the school with all the expected characteristics—cheerfulness, briskness, friendliness, and thoroughness.

In the high school office are Miss Maurine Link and Miss Eleanor Ellefson, who lately replaced Mrs. Dorothy Nichols. Miss Esther Shabaz and Mrs. Minerva Short are the capable assistants in the grade school office.

Emer's Backbone, Board of Control

President Deno Kottaridis governed the Board of Control with the aid of its sponsor, Mr. Carlberg. This board, in turn, led the student body during the year. Primarily, however, the Board originates within the students. They are the ones who determine who is placed on this body. Class presidents, committee chairmen, and two representatives from each class all voice their problems freely and without restraint. This form of student government has three vital committees: Social Committee, Booster Committee, and Building and Grounds Committee. These committees' duties vary, but they carry on the main work of the Board of Control.

Standing: Deno Kottaridis.

The Social Committee this year provided a program filled with variety. Barn-dances broke up the monotony of previous years, and organized bands were introduced to Emer's social whirl; the selection of records was up to par, and the stand-by Wednesday night dances were well attended. Tuesday mornings marked this committee's meeting days and all jobs were taken care of in the time allotted for register meeting. Chairman and sponsor alike, Pat Hall and Miss Reynolds, can be proud of themselves.

Ruby Kottaridis was chairman of the Booster Committee for '49. She and her staff were assigned the tremendous job of boosting all school affairs—sports events, dances, or come what may. Any shy or reticent person would surely have been unsafe if his fate had been determined by the Booster Committee, for they called for noise—at the right time, of course.

The task of the Building and Grounds Committee is no snap either. Their purpose is to keep the halls and grounds free of refuse. In the event the students get careless, this committee should remind them of it, and show how to keep the halls clean. Not only did this committee attempt to fill their obligations concerning clean halls, but they also had charge of hall guards. Hank Dzienslaw was head clean-up man this year; Miss Ban was committee sponsor.

Emer, the Student

Coping with problems of exams, dates, and money, Emers' sons pull through. They start as Freshmen, working, studying, playing, and they leave as proud old Emers' sons—and after these there shall be others, but I will remain.

Emer Stumped On Junior Test Day

Oh, my aching head! These words were heard again and again from the lips of tired juniors. Every year this class has a difficult task before it. The assignment which brings such lamenting is the annual psychological test prepared by the American Council of Education. The primary purpose of the test is to determine one's capacity to learn; it is not a question of how much one already knows, but rather a test of ability to think through new situations. Emers' son and daughters have come through all right year after year, with this class no exception.

Why this test is given in the junior year may puzzle many people. Reason—so that faculty members may better prepare students for the future during their last year in high school.

A very nice boy—he's so much fun,
His comic antics attract everyone.

Emer, the Norseman

My interests in sports vary from basketball to track, swimming to tennis; each for the betterment of my life and health. In all sports I play fair, making all who belong to my school proud old Emers' sons.

Well Trained, Good Season

The group as a whole this year made a pretty good showing. The varsity lost two games this season, the reserves lost three, and the freshmen, like the varsity, shared city champs honors with Roosevelt of Gary. After the season was over, the football team had three banquets.

The first was sponsored by the Gary Works Division of Carnegie Illinois Steel Corporation. Stu Holcomb, the line coach of Purdue, was the main speaker. He gave a little outline of the games that his team played.

The second banquet was held in honor of Roosevelt and Emerson, the co-champs of Gary. It was sponsored by the Gary Business Men's Association. A former linesman of the Chicago Bears added a very lively touch to the program with his interpretation of present day football.

The last dinner was held in the Emerson Cafeteria, where letters were awarded to the members of the squad. A very familiar face was seen at this banquet; it was Dr. Daunches, a former All American end and a present day bone specialist. Coach Rolfe gave a brief summary of each game after dinner and then the rest of the guests were requested to say a few words.

Loyal Reserve Tornado

The reserves with the help of Coach Connelly turned in a fair season with four wins and three losses. Two of the losses were to Tolleston and one to Froebel. The teams that lost to Emerson reserves were Lew Wallace, Horace Mann, Merrillville, and Gary Edison.

The reserves were also scheduled to play Roosevelt of Gary. This would have been their last game of the year, but it was called because of rain. The reserve games were played in the morning on Saturdays. Although Coach Connelly took charge of the boys during the week, Coach Rolfe went with the reserves to the games to see how they were getting along for next year. The reserves appointed among themselves, at each game, a captain to lead them and make decisions.

Freshmen, Co-champs

The freshman football team and Coach Klug measured up to the varsity this season. They knew little about the game to begin with, but they realized that hard work pays off. The young Norsemen lost only one game, to Froebel, and tied with Gary Roosevelt for city champs. The games that were won by them were Tolleston 7-0, Lew Wallace 6-0, East Chicago Roosevelt 28-0, and Horace Mann 26-7. The big thrill of the year was the Horace Mann game. In the first quarter Emerson was losing 7-0, but during the second quarter they broke loose to score twice, they

Nucleus of the Tornado

The Golden Tornado had a very successful season this year. Of the eight games that were played only two were lost. The brightest game of the season was against the Horace Mann eleven, with a very tight first half and a rip-roaring second half. This year Emerson also had the good fortune to have the top scorer of the city, Deno Kottaridis, running at halfback. Kottaridis had a total of 84 points, 14 touchdowns.

Against Gary Roosevelt, Kuzma made the first score on two successive Panther miscues. Aznar also scored to climax a thirty-three yard drive.

Evansville Memorial proved a tough foe, too. With the rough running of Deno Kottaridis the Norse again broke into the pay zone to win 13-7.

Against Tolleston, Theodoris threw a tenth play pass, and Kottaridis received for the first tally. Aznar and Kuzma also scored to beat Tolleston 26-12.

Kottaridis made the first touchdown against Lew Wallace, after three tries, from the Hornets twenty-five yard line; the second score was also made by Kottaridis. After the half, Wallace set fire to the field. They scored first on a sleeper to Jimmy Kish, then scored again to dunk the sons of Emer 13-12.

Rogers, Theodoris, and Kottaridis made the touchdowns against the Blue Devils of Froebel to down them 25-0. Golden Greek night came again, when the Tornado whirled over Fort Wayne Catholic Central to the tune of 45-7.

Emers' sons mauled Horace Mann, 45-12. Although the Horsemen got two touchdowns in the first half, the Norse, in the form of Kottaridis, tallied two T.D.s, too. In the second half Roger Gill scored once and Dzienslaw also made one touchdown. Kottaridis made two scores in the second half. Although Horace Mann kept fighting they could not maintain a sustained drive.

The last game of the season, against Whiting, was lost because of sluggish team work and fumbles. The Oilers scored in the first quarter on an aerial to go to the lead 6-0. After the first half Emers' boys broke loose and Theodoris scored in the third quarter, the conversion was good, and Emerson had the upper hand. The final quarter, however, proved to be too much for the Gold and Grey. Whiting again clicked on a pass and scored with five minutes to go. The Tornado started down the field, but two costly fumbles proved to be the downfall of the East Side eleven, and the gun ended the game in midfield 12-7.

Reserve Team, Future Emer's Norsemen

As the season opened, no one expected much of a basketball team from Emerson because of the team's lack of height. Even though they were lacking in height, they made up for that with a small, fast-breaking team.

At the beginning of the season the entire starting team was made up of football boys. There were such stalwarts as Deno Kottaridis, Bill Theodoris, Hank Dzienslaw, Bobo Camplese, and Roger Gill. This starting team also included all seniors. The only other senior on the team besides the first string was Mike Olejnik.

Although the team only compiled a .500 average with ten wins and ten losses, there were many exciting games during the season such as the one with Hammond, who was in first place in the NIHSC. Emerson beat them 45-40. Another game full of thrills was the one with Lew Wallace, who was beaten by a very narrow score of 36 to 35.

The team did pretty well during the season, but when it came to sectional time the boys didn't seem to have what it took to come through with the championship as Emers' teams had so often during the last few years.

The seniors did it. Yes, the Senior "A" won the class basketball championship. The only team that really gave them any trouble was the Junior "A." This Senior "A" team was not only the champion this year, but was the Junior "A" which won the championship last year. This year's championship team was made up of such seniors as Marty Aznar, Dennis Gately, John Sargis, Vic Sartoris, and a newcomer to Emerson this year, John Durkin.

Probably the hardest game the seniors had during the year was one of the games in which they played the Junior "A." This game was fought through two overtime periods before the Senior "A" came out the victors by a two point margin.

This year's reserve team, under the direction of Coach Klug, came out with a season record of 16 wins and 2 losses. The reserve team will be the future champion team of Emerson with such members as Tom Motto, Chuck Selby, Jim Johnson, Eugene Carrabine, Joe Settle, Bob Richardson, Nick Gurgevich, Hershel Harbison.

The team played good basketball and were in there trying their best the whole year long.

Trained Hard and Reaped Honors

"Shine in 49." That was the cry heard by all Emersonians from this year's track team. Each and every one of the track members strove hard to be on top, because, of course, their main ambition was to be able to compete in the state track meet held in Indianapolis, May 28.

The team worked long and strenuously to get ready for their first track meet which was the City Indoor Meet, held at the University of Chicago Field House on March 22.

April 5 — Showed Emerson's speed demons out on Lew Wallace's cinders.

April 8 — There they go, off to E. C. Roosevelt.

April 11 — It was Hammond Clark.

April 15 — They had a chance to compete against Horace Mann.

April 19 — Tolleston was the host for the day.

April 23 — Get the batons out, it's the East Chicago Relay!

April 26 — They took a trip to see how tough Washington of East Chicago was.

April 30 — The boys were in shape for the Conference Preliminaries by now.

May 3 — Another City Track Meet, only this time outdoors.

May 7 — Those who qualified for the Conference Preliminaries were ready to enter in Conference finals.

May 13 — The lucky ones got to compete in the Sectionals.

May 21 — We moved on to the District Meet.

May 28 — This was the day every qualified man on the team was waiting for; yes, it was the state track meet.

Harriers Show Spirit

Did you notice how the cross-country team started out the season humming the old Glen Miller favorite, "Runnin' Wild", and how they ended the season by hoarsely whispering, "So Tired"?

Seriously though, the small group of harriers put up a good battle attempting to regain the honor of having once had one of the best teams in this district. Although the small team of three seniors and four juniors did not fare so well, one of the juniors on the team, Steve Mast, was named one of the ten best cross-country men in this northern Indiana district.

The major letter winners this year were Steve Mast, Bob Hall, Ronald Ward, Don Smith, and Leonard Niepokoj. The minor letter winners were Steve Millick and Bill Drysdale.

The team, coached by Harold Connelly, competed in nine dual meets against teams from the Calumet area. They also entered in such big meets as the Sectional, Northern Indiana Conference, and the Hobart Invitational.

Emer takes his hat off to those who stuck out the season with such spiritedness.

Guiding G.A.A. Activities

G. A. A. . . . rapidly becoming one of the most popular high school organizations for girls in the country, had, from Emerson, a membership of over two hundred during the 48-49 season. Guiding these healthy members were Miss Reynolds, the sponsor; Kathleen Egan, president; Jackie Evans, vice-president; Patti Lucas, sports co-ordinator; Frankie Connors, treasurer; Mary Wellman, assistant treasurer; and Ruby Kottaridis, secretary. The board members who presided over speedball, basketball, volleyball, baseball, swimming, indoor sports, and outdoor sports were Betty Dawson, Joyce Klein, Joan Sacketos, Evelyn Galka, Virginia Wolff, Joan Brown and Diane Cole, Mary Ranzino and Gladys Chorak, respectively. Taking care of the social side of the G. A. A. were Pat Hall and Elaine Kaplan. This body of girls met once a month; at these meetings they planned the activities and projects for the advancing year. They also discussed and decided on the theme for the annual banquet, nominated the officers for 49-50, and, in general, worked and planned for the betterment of their G. A. A.

On May the twenty-seventh of this well-remembered year; amid the bare chicken legs and fish bones, the senior girls bid a tearful farewell to the happy times that they had enjoyed in the Emerson G. A. A.

Girls Participate in Sports

"Banquet time! Whatcha gonna wear?" Another year come to an end, another group of Emers' daughters take over. A dance now and then, social events, candy selling at games, and dues help the G. A. A. finance the girls' banquet. At this gala affair certain awards are given to the outstanding girls. The plaque is given the class which has taken first place in three out of the five major sports; the outstanding girl or girls of that class receive it. The loving cup, which is a gold cup given to the girl excelling in sports with a well-rounded personality, is also presented at this time. In the year of '48 there was such a close rating between two girls that the faculty board decided to give two cups.

Olga Dotlich received one; Maryanne Reid, the other. If, in her four years of G. A. A., a girl has acquired 3,000 points or over, she may get a higher award. If she has made 1500 points she is entitled to a letter (E). For every 500 points after that she receives a bar. Other honors are awarded at the banquet to outstanding sophomores, and to promising freshmen. Besides the material awards the girls better their knowledge of sports by learning fairness, sportsmanship, and team work.

The seating at the tables is so arranged that the freshmen leave first, the sophomores second, juniors third, and the seniors last. Looking back on the empty tables and worn out favors the seniors leave, closing the doors on their last year of G. A. A.

And Social Activities

Getting off to a clean and fast start in the beginning of the year, the senior members of the Girl's Athletic Association initiated a number of eager pledges. These new members, called scums, became eligible when they earned one-hundred points in some sport. After being initiated and given a constitution of the organization, these members work toward higher awards such as: letters, higher awards, loving cup, stars, and bars. They must earn fifteen hundred points in order to obtain a letter. Upon receiving this, they may work for their bars which are given for every five hundred points earned a year. The maximum number of bars is four, one for each year. The star is the insignia given to each board member and officer of the

G. A. A., white for the officers, and gold for the board.

Individual sports are stressed after school, on Fridays, but the girls seem to prefer baseball to tennis, speedball to hiking, and basketball to bowling. Speedball starts the season out in the fall and when the tenseness in the girls is gone, basketball takes the highlight. Immediately following basketball, volleyball becomes the main sport; in place of 'shoot' the gym becomes alive with shouts of 'spike it'. In every sport each girl plays eight practice games; then the varsities are chosen. Swimming and baseball are sports stressed in the spring. Sometimes running parallel to each other, these two are rather hard to regulate. Recording points ties up the year and completes another season of G. A. A.

Speedball Begins Season

The freshman speedball varsity, which always seems to be the weakest team, carried on the tradition of preceding freshmen teams. Having the spirit, eagerness, and willingness to play, this team still lacked the skill acquired by years of experience. Some of the upperclassmen, judging by the black and blue bruises received during play, thought the team had a little too much spirit. In a few of the games with upperclassmen, they found that this newly organized team was not going to be as easy to beat as had been expected. The freshman varsity team can be proud of the fact that through their good sportsmanship they have gained some skill in the sport of speedball. With a few years experience and a little more team-work they will develop and some day come in first. Although they ended up in last place, the spirit that is forever Emer will remain in these future sophomores.

The sophomore varsity acquired a little more skill since last year and managed to wind up in third place. In recognition of the fact that the freshmen were a tough team to beat, the sophomores are lucky to have earned third place in the class standing. They tried with all their skill to beat the upperclassmen, but the juniors and seniors proved to be too big a match for them. They did surprise these teams, though, by playing some closely contested games with them. Shirley Sides, the sophomore varsity captain, guided her team to two wins which, as usual, were their victories over the freshman team. Using their knowledge of the game and their acquired skill, they gave both of the upperclass teams two never-to-be-forgotten games.

Both the freshman and the sophomore teams came out in the standing as was expected. The seniors usually rate first, juniors second, sophomores third, and the freshmen last. The big surprise came when the juniors rated first.

Juniors Take First

The junior varsity . . . nothing else can be said about this team except that they were the junior varsity . . . It's like saying the name Babe Ruth . . . A great number of juniors turned out for speedball this year; they weren't going to let the seniors beat them! This victory meant the first step toward the plaque. The efficient well-organized junior varsity, which was chosen from a multitude of girls, walked into first place with the grace of a swan. In the two senior games they concentrated mainly on the offensive in the first half, and after gaining some points settled back to the defensive. With Norma Galnares as their captain they managed to take first rating in speedball. But all this sounds too easy; the seniors gave the juniors a tremendous fight, but . . . the best team won.

The senior girls walked into speedball quite prosaically this year. Feeling sure that they would win over the underclassmen, they took the don't-worry-we'll-beat-them attitude. Much to their surprise, they found the junior team a little tougher than they had anticipated. The seniors tried twice, in vain, to beat the well-organized junior team. With three years experience behind them, the seniors vowed to 'get' basketball.

At the spread, after the close of the season, the seniors yielded the sport to the juniors. Speeches were made and recognition was given to each team in view of their accomplishments. The seniors left a little sadly, the juniors joyously, the sophomores enviously, and the freshmen . . . they cleaned off the tables.

Seniors Victorious

The Seniors proved to be the best G. A. A. team this year. They accomplished this by beating the freshman and sophomore teams each twice and beating the juniors three times. They were led through their final year of basketball by Frankie Connors. The seniors had fine forwards with Kate Egan, Jackie Evans and Frankie Connors providing an unbeatable combination. After three years of playing together, they showed good sportsmanship and fine team work. Joyce Klein, head of basketball this year, was mistress of ceremonies at the basketball spread. She introduced the board members and Miss Reynolds, who gave a short talk on the basketball season. Mrs. Benfield was presented a bouquet of roses for the fine meal served. The seniors were proud that in their last year of G. A. A. activities they came in first in one of the most popular sports in school.

The Junior varsity, having won speedball, wanted to win basketball. As it turned out, the juniors, although they had the spirit, lacked the skill. The Junior team, captained by Barb Siebenhaar, beat very decisively the freshmen and sophomores, but the seniors proved too much for them. Barb Siebenhaar led the team in scoring by being the sharpest player on the team and the most accurate. The team was well organized with each player having a certain position and playing only that position. They exhibited a lot of teamwork and good sportsmanship. The team also liked to play good basketball and enjoyed each senior game, although they lost every one. In their third game the juniors and seniors played an in and out game and the juniors, having lost the other two games felt victory was a necessity. However, the seniors, wanting to keep their record, completely routed the juniors, who consoled themselves with the fact that next year they would be seniors and could perhaps take basketball.

Next Years Competitors

The varsity team of the Sophomore class wasn't as hard to beat in basketball as they were in speedball. With one year of playing experience behind them, they displayed good knowledge of the game, but seemed to lack enthusiasm. They did beat the freshmen and came in third in the standing. None of the games was particularly close except the last one, in which the freshmen managed to tie the sophomores in the closing minutes of the game. The game was decided in the first overtime period with the sophomores on the winning side. The team had forwards who were both good shots and fast players. Their captain, Shirley Sides, was one of the sharpest players they had. Their guards were also fine players, being both fast and accurate. The team exhibited good sportsmanship and will be a tough team to beat in next year's competition.

The Freshman varsity team, captained by Phedon Depanion, ended up like most freshman team, in fourth place. They are usually last because their freshman year is the first year they play basketball, and the game needs skill in ball-handling and good marksmanship. Although they lost to each class, many upper classmen remarked after encountering this team, that they played a more unified game than most freshman teams and provided stiff competition. The group played basketball with a spirit and enthusiasm that many beginning teams lack. They had good forwards on their team who were tough for opposing guards and were surprisingly good shots. The team members show promise of turning into fine players who will improve each year. At the basketball spread, which was held in the cafeteria on February 23, the freshmen displayed good sportsmanship by clearing the tables and returning the cafeteria to it's normal state.

Activities make an Emers' son. Through me my sons and daughters are active in auditorium, clubs and committees, while I am everywhere, as the sweet music hanging over the dance floor or the hot air flying in a committee room.

Honor Students Serve

Among their projects for the year, the Junior Honor Society sponsored a number of social events. One of these was a get-acquainted party to which only members were invited. To help teach seventh and eighth grade students how to dance, matinee dances were held. Later, on the evening of May 20, a dress-up dance was held.

A lost and found bureau, open both noon hours, was also sponsored by the Junior Honor Society. Unclaimed articles remaining after a display in the auditorium were given to a charitable organization.

The members of the Honor Society are chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership, service, and character. Each member must have at least a "B" average and each must be approved by the faculty before being initiated. Grades are checked every grade period, and if a member falls below the required scholastic standing, he is given one grade period to make it up; then, if he is still below, he is dropped from membership.

This year parents and friends attended the induction and a reception which were held on March 29. The inductees were Eugenia Sacopulas, Nancy Walker, Harriet Long, Sue Crane, Charlene Adams, Patricia Rushing, Yvonne Spann, Gloria Runyan, Vance Cornish, Margaret Vaidik, and Donald Rebollo. These new members were welcomed by the officers:

School and Community

This year sixteen new members, chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership, service, and character, were asked into the Emerson Chapter of the National Senior Honor Society. These proud students were formally inducted on March 11, 1949, in the traditional candlelight ceremony which was witnessed by parents and friends. Following the induction, a tea was held to which parents, faculty, and members were invited. This tea was sponsored by the faculty council, and two of the teachers, Miss Bernice Beeler and Miss Esther Tinsman, served the punch. The table was attractively decorated with spring flowers.

These new members were Sue Lowe, Betty Lieber, Calliope Alevrofas, Leroy Hurdlow, Shirley Short, Lorraine Short, Clara Atlas, Joan Sacketos, Gilbert Barnes, Eleanor Ellefson, Velia Rodriguez, Dorothy Hardy, Allen Fink, Jackie Evans, and Joan Rendz. Tom Josivoff was unable to attend since he was having a test at Purdue that day. He was later inducted at a private ceremony.

YWCA memberships were given to five under-privileged boys by the Emerson Chapter as one of their projects. Miss Eunice Johns and Miss Violet Sipavich, former exchange teachers in England, were asked to tell of their experiences to a general high school assembly. Later, in the spring, the society sponsored a college and career day at which representatives from various businesses and schools gave useful information to students and their parents.

This society is always active. In some schools only seniors are inducted in the spring, so that there are no members during most of the year, but at Emerson a few juniors are inducted each year so that they can carry on the projects during their senior year.

The society closed the year with a party to which the members and the council were invited.

The Honor Society helps its members even after they have graduated, for there is an interest-free scholarship fund always available for former members who want to further their education.

Emer's Drama School In Action

June eighth was a day not to be easily forgotten by thirteen Emerson seniors who were inducted, at a dinner in the Emerson cafeteria, into the Masque and Gavel Club. As requirements for entrance into the Masque and Gavel Club, each student must have four years of Auditorium, which includes a Vocational diploma. Also, each one must have sixty activities points, earned by participating in class plays, Everyman, the Christmas Pageant, and debate. Each student must have the unanimous consent of the teachers in the Auditorium department. Masque and Gavel is a national society, and the Emerson chapter is headed by Miss Hazel Harrison.

Sophomores and Juniors Produce Class Plays

This year, in place of the traditional Sophomore play, the Sophomore and Freshman classes combined and presented two one-act plays entitled Elmer and Sitting Tonight, given on February 16, 1949.

The story of Elmer deals with the troubles of a young boy and his twin sisters. Elmer was portrayed by Jim Johnson, and his sisters were Elnora Wilburn and Martha Garner. Mildred Solon assisted in the production of the play as student director.

In the other, Sitting Tonight, Gerry Miklos had the leading role of "Mary Lou," and Charles Bouque was "Stuffy Alexander." Sitting Tonight is a story of a young baby sitter. As student director of this play, Christine Bikos aided Mrs. Palmer, who directed both plays. Both classes did a nice job in combining their forces to give Emer's sons and daughters a new interest in school plays.

Great Expectations, a novel written by Charles Dickens, was chosen as the Junior Class play for this year. Great Expectations is a story centered around a boy named Pip; it tells of his exciting experiences and adventures. The cast included Nick Franke, Pip; Craig Downey, Pip; Despina Christakis, Estella; Nan Shultz, Estella (both roles double casted); Sherry Lau, Miss Havisham; Marty McGuire, Mr. Jaggers; Bill Lautenbach, the convict Magwitch. Supporting these players in lesser roles were Velia Rodriguez, Mrs. Joe Gargery; John Demetrakis, Mr. Joe Gargery; Shirley Wheeler, Camilla; Joan Plenus, Bidley; John Finn, Officer and Bentley Drummle; Morris Robinson, Raymond; Pat O'Reilly, Pip as a child. Miss Gladys Ekeberg, director of the Junior Play, as assisted by Mary Kachis, student director. The play was presented in the Emerson Auditorium on March 4.

Seniors Present

"I Remember Mama"

When Emer heard the Senior Play of '49 was to be I Remember Mama he was very enthused. After I Remember Mama made such a hit on Broadway as well as on the screen, Emer knew the public would enjoy it, and he also knew that the cast that was chosen to portray the characters in the play would make it one of the most successful plays ever to be given at Emerson. I Remember Mama was written by John Van Druten adapted from Kathryn Forbes' book "Mama's Bank Account." The play takes place about 1910 at the Hansen residence in San Francisco, California. The story centers around Mama's non-existent bank account. In the role of Mama are Virginia Wolff and Marie Clark. Katrin, who is played by Marge Berta, loves to write stories, but each of her stories has been refused by the publishers—then she writes a story about Mama and the rest of the family which is accepted by the publishers. Papa, an easy-going, philosophical gentleman, is played by Dick Carrabine. Included in the supporting cast were Despina Christakis, Dagmar; Judy Schroeder, Christine; Dan Rotenberg, Mr. Hyde; Robert Charlebois, Nels; Mary Anne Plunkett, Aunt Trina; Virginia Wolff and Marie Clark, Aunt Jenny; Velia Rodriguez, Aunt Sigrid; Walter Landis, Uncle Chris; Thomas Morley, Mr. Thorkelson; Don Smith, Dr. Johnson; and others. The play was directed under the talented hand of Mrs. Gertrude Palmer. The play setting was designed by John Kish. I Remember Mama was presented on May 11 and 13. After the May 11 performance a reception was held for the cast, their parents and guests. Concluding the May 13 presentation the annual Homecoming Dance was given under the direction of Patti Lucas, chairman of the Homecoming Committee.

Auditorium

"Tryouts tonight!!"

That was one of the favorite expressions used during the first few weeks of tryouts for the 1949 Spice and Variety. Then, after eliminations, that cry of "You just have to be at practice tonight," rang throughout the auditorium. Finally the day came to give the first performance, the students were tense and Miss Harrison was worried, as usual, that something drastic would go wrong. But the show went off like a breeze, and the public loved it. The three performances drew a capacity crowd. Some of the acts best liked by the audience were "Peter and the Wolf," "Romance Through the Ages," "Country Style," and last but not least that comical routine, "Varsity Revue." Spice and Variety of 1949 was a big success only because of the help of the Spice committee, the auditorium department, and cooperation of the students.

Traditions

The Debate team of Emerson, under the capable supervision of Miss Gladys Ekeberg, has studied and debated the subject; Resolved: that the United Nations now be revised into a Federal World Government. On this topic the team debated with Horace Mann, Froebel, Tolleston, Lew Wallace, and Roosevelt. On December 3, 1948, the team made a trip to Purdue, where they attended the Debaters Conference and Legislative Assembly.

The Christmas Pageant at Emerson has been a tradition for fifteen years, and will go on being a yearly presentation in which all students are anxious to perform. Students of Emerson are indebted to Miss Hazel Harrison who is the author of "The Birthday of a King." It is told very effectively with the assistance of the A Cappella, and the Girls' Club, directed by Miss Sayers, and the Junior Choir under the direction of Miss Melba Cromer.

Group Singers Blend

In 1931 the A Cappella Choir was organized by Miss Grace Sayers. Students try out for the honor of being a member and all await anxiously for the day when the membership lists are posted.

This year the first activity of "Choir" was to put on their act, "Country Style," in Spice and Variety. In this act, while most of the members were singing, a few square-danced to the calling of Deno Kottaridis.

The next event was the traditional Christmas Pageant, Birthday of a King, in which the group sang such numbers as "Adeste Fideles," "Silent Night," "In Dulci Jubilo," and "A Birthday of a King." After the pageant, members of the choir carolled in the halls.

For the Easter morality play, "Everyman," the choir sang some old Latin motets, "Alla Trinita," "Gloria Patri," and "Adoramus Te," by Palestrina.

Next came the Spring Vocal Concert on May 25. For the last two performances of the year, some of the members wore graduation robes instead of choir robes. At Baccalaureate, A Cappella sang the beautiful hymn, "Remember Now Thy Creator." At Commencement, they sang "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

In addition to these appearances, the

Included among their activities were appearances before a Women's Club meeting at the City Church, and before a luncheon group made up of prominent Gary people at Emerson during Education Week.

They participated in The Christmas Pageant, with A Cappella and Girls' Glee Club. Here, too, the boys' sextet, made up of members of the choir, sang "Glory to God in the

One of their final activities was participation in the Emerson Spring Vocal Concert in May. At this time one of their numbers was "The Holy City."

The Girls' Glee Club began its activities with an act in Spice and Variety called "Louis Kampouris and His All Girl Chorus." The group sang "Sweethearts" and accompanied soloist Marge Berta in "Maybe You'll Be There." Pastel colored formals, baskets of flowers, and soft lights added a romantic touch to the scene. In the Christmas Pageant, the Glee Club, representing an angel choir, sang "Gloria in Excelsis Deo," "O Holy Night," "Adeste Fideles," and "Silent Night." Their next performance was for the Emerson Spring Vocal Concert. Again formals were worn and made a very intriguing picture on the stage. As its last deed of the school year, the Glee Club sang for Commencement of June 17.

Rehearsals for the Club were on Wednesday and Friday, taking time from last hour gym or study. The officers were: President, Helen Nickovich; Vice-President, Patricia Wainman; Treasurer, Barbara Siebenhaar. Miss Grace Sayers sponsored the group.

United For Better Music

One of Mr. H. S. Warren's many directing duties is that of leading the girls' band. This year he was assisted by Mrs. Ann Masters and by Joy Stafford, student director and president of the band.

One naturally thinks of the girls' band in parallel with the boys' band, and this common idea is not entirely wrong. A few members of the girls' band had to transfer to the boys' band because of program difficulties and so a similarity is established. Mr. Warren usually selects a few capable girls to join the boys' band in what is known as the "marching band." Also, the two bands join once yearly to present a combined band concert.

On February 26 the band traveled to Hobart to participate in a solo meet held there. The girls enjoyed the trip and returned with a number of first places. Each person, whether or not she emerges victorious in such a contest, has achieved the ability to learn to blend harmoniously with others, for one sour note will ruin a whole composition. These particular students are preparing themselves, perhaps not for a musical career alone, but for a strengthening of character which will be useful to them all their lives.

A smaller group of girls were the majorettes. The class meets regularly each Tuesday after school. The enrollment is not limited to high school students only, as most people believe, but extends through the grades to kindergarten.

The band as a group functions socially as well as musically. Occasionally an informal social gathering will be held during the regular class period, usually before a holiday season. The girls may also perform individually or in small groups at the invitation of a civic association. All in all, the band provides an opportunity for each member to build and strengthen her character and to learn the necessity of co-operation.

The boys' band concluded a year of appearances and rehearsals with the main event of the year, the combined band concert, which was held in the Memorial Auditorium on April 28. No other event was looked forward to with such enthusiasm by both the participants and followers of the bands.

The members of the boys' band began the year by marching at various football games, performing with colored lights and deft formations. Often, they had to march in biting cold, or otherwise disagreeable weather, which seemed to serve as an incentive as each of their appearances showed. The band also played at the American Legion Hut on Armistice Day, as they do every year.

Mr. Warren, the director of the band, has completed his twenty-eighth year as a member of the Emerson faculty. He has been assisted by Mrs. Ann Masters and Mr. Ballway. Mrs.

Concert Band Promotes

Masters, an alumnus of Ball State Teachers' College, was a member of the Emerson band and orchestra while completing her high school education. Mr. Ballway has been a director in the music department for two years and is in charge of the intermediate department.

In February, district contests were held in which Emerson students entered in solo, duet, and trio divisions. They competed with similar groups from other schools. The Emerson representatives returned with nine first place and fourteen second place awards this year. In the state contest, held at Indianapolis on March 26, among the Emerson representatives were soloists, Alvin Goldstein, cornet, and Joan Plemich, cornet.

Pleasing Harmony

There were two cornet trios consisting of Allen Fink, Richard Steinke, Alvin Goldstein; and Joan Plemich, Alvin Goldstein, Richard Steinke. These contestants returned with three third places and one fourth. Emerson contestants have won five state contests. All that participated in the contest had a very enjoyable time.

The bugle call, which brings students and faculty alike to attention twice a day, was sounded this year by Joan Pemich and Richard Steinke. This is just one of the small, although important, duties which the band undertakes for the benefit of the school.

In 1919, six enthusiastic students formed a musical group which a year later became organized under the direction of Mr. Warren. It took just six years for this small group to grow adequately in number, ability, and experience to compete in a contest with musical groups of other schools in our locality.

Having concluded its twenty-eighth year, the band does not stop to meditate over the success and growth of the past years, which were years of which to be proud. Each year sees a crop of musicians new to the boys' band introduced to that industrious department. These students do not bask in the glory of those gone before them but, as though dictated to by some unwritten law, strive forward to take their places among the unsung heroes of the past.

The Concert Orchestra, directed by Mr. Warren and Mrs. Masters, is the goal of every member of the Beginning and Intermediate Orchestras. Those who prove themselves capable of playing harmoniously in groups, and who are willing and capable of cooperating with others, attain membership in this branch of the music department. In this way are the rules of sportsmanship taught and the benefits of fair play shown.

The mid-semester concert was held this year on January 30. The guest vocalist was Doris Carpenter Beckham, who was the first place winner in the womens' vocal division at the Chicagoland Music festival of the past year. As always, the concert was a tremendous success, which was shown by the great number of people attending the performance. The spring concert took place on April 28 in the Emerson auditorium. Again, the well-known reputation of the Concert Orchestra drew a full house. No one was dissatisfied; in fact, the well-presented concert won additional admirers.

Special school activities, such as the Junior Play, Spice and Variety, and the Senior Play, have been accompanied by the pit orchestra which is composed of one or two of the best players of each division of the complete orchestra.

No one could possibly forget or overlook the Concert Orchestra's last appearance at which they so solemnly played "Pomp and Circumstance." By their excellent presentation of this widely-used classic composition, they made the Emerson Commencement of 1949 a memorable event.

Universal Language

An annual appearance which the orchestra makes and for which they deserve recognition is their visit to the Tuberculosis Sanitarium. This trip, usually made in the fall, serves two purposes. First, it provides entertainment for the patients who otherwise have little or nothing to take up their time and who welcome our orchestra enthusiastically each year. Also, it gives the student a chance to realize the self-satisfaction a truly worthwhile person experiences by making others, less fortunate than himself, a little lighter in spirit.

Many people speak and think of the orchestra as a group of different instruments striving to blend together in a pleasing way. Various instruments are used in an orchestra but few know what these are, with the exception possibly of the violin and piano. There are four divisions in our Concert Orchestra. The violins, violas, cellos, string bass, and piano compose the string section which is the largest division. The brass section takes in such instruments as the trombone, cornet, and french horn; while the woodwinds are made up of such instruments as the flute, clarinet, and oboe. The fourth section of the orchestra is the percussion division. Kettle, bass, and snare drums are used to make up this part of our orchestra.

Founded in 1914, the orchestra has come to be an institution of Emerson. That year saw the end of just violin classes, which up to that time had been directed by Mr. M. E. Snyder, and it marked the beginning of a larger group of future musicians and a branching out from the violins to include more and different instruments until it has grown to the Concert Orchestra as we know it today.

Emer's Tacticians

Gone forever is the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. No more shall we hear the military units referred to officially as R.O.T.C. In its stead a new abbreviation has arisen—D. M. S. & T.—the Department of Military Science and Tactics. This change occurred when orders came from Fifth Army Headquarters in Indianapolis.

The D. M. S. & T. has carried on its important enterprises this year under the auspices of Sergeant Harris and Sergeant 1/c Savonovic. Also lending a very able hand was the Battalion Staff, which included Lieutenant Colonel Louis Kampouris, Major William Mitchell and Adjutant James Elliott. The company commanders, Richard Steinke and Gilbert Barnes, proved themselves capable leaders and set a good example for their men.

A well-rounded outline provided the basis for the many activities in which the D. M. S. & T. participated. Not only military but social activities highlighted the program.

The Military Ball was held May 28 in the Crystal Ball Room of the Hotel Gary. Emerson was host to a city-wide dance for all cadets on February 4. These two events comprised the social features for the year.

The rifle team shot in the Hearst Trophy Match and the Fifth Army Match. Federal inspection culminated the military affairs on May 20. Following the customs of previous years, the D. M. S. & T. participated in the Battalion Parade, in which all schools are represented, and in the Memorial Day Parade.

No longer can the training you receive in the D. M. S. & T. serve as a substitute for physical education. This added semblance of dignity has served as an incentive to the cadets and acted as the drive which prompts their good work.

Romance Languages Bring Culture and Understanding

Each of the Spanish classes has officers, but those in the second year class serve for the Spanish Club as a whole. This year these officers were: Manuel Vidal, president; Judy Schroeder, vice-president; Leroy Hurdlow, secretary; and Melvin Edwards, treasurer. Mrs. Reyher sponsors the organization.

Each year the Spanish Club sponsors a "Fiesta." This year it was held on May 6. The Spanish Club voted to invite seniors who had previously had two years of Spanish and members of the Latin Club. The dance was held in the girls' lower gym, and was enjoyed by all who attended it.

Several members of the Latin Club represented Emerson at the annual Latin conference which was attended by students from all Gary schools. This year the conference was on April 23 at Roosevelt High School. The Emerson students led a discussion group on "The Study of Classical Languages."

Mr. DeLeurere sponsors the club, and the officers this year were: president, Joan Vokurka; vice-president, Clara Minelli; and secretary, Shirley O'Laughlin.

At each meeting a member of the club gave an informative talk about old Roman customs and the classics. In this way interest in Latin was stimulated.

Business World Material

The Commercial Club of Emerson School is open to any high school student who is interested in the field of commerce and is able to meet the requirements. In order to become a member, you must have completed or be completing your second semester of commercial work. The prospective member must have maintained a "B" average in his commercial subjects.

The initiation of the newly chosen members was held on November 23, 1948. The ceremony, witnessed by alumni and old members, was conducted by candlelight. Following the ceremony, there was dancing, and refreshments were served.

This year the duties of the officers were carried out by: Sue Ross, president; Elaine Kaplan, vice president; Dorris Pichitino, secretary; and Charlotte Heistand, treasurer. Miss Beeler and Miss Rowe were sponsors for the organization.

Every two weeks the club held a business meeting at the 12:20 hour in the cooking room. Several times during the year, special meetings were called. At the special meetings, club alumni and business representatives spoke upon the preparation and personal traits that are necessary to be successful in business.

The main project of the Commercial Club was to sponsor the school paper, The Golden Gazette. All the editors, typists, and reporters were chosen or elected from the club.

During the school year, the club members took several field trips to different business firms to learn more about business techniques. One of the most interesting trips made, was an all day conference at the Chicago branch of Northwestern University. The students were very much impressed by the many business machines on display and enjoyed watching the demonstrations.

Project - Golden Gazette

One of the finest projects to come out of the year 1949 was the school newspaper, The Golden Gazette. For many years Emerson produced a mimeographed newspaper, but this fall a group of ambitious seniors decided that they would like to publish a printed paper for the students of Emerson.

With Editor Danny Rotenberg and a capable staff, assisted by the Commercial Club, the plans for the paper began. The first problem was a name. The student body was asked to submit names, and the final choice was The Golden Gazette. Immediately a campaign for yearly subscriptions began, and on October 13 the first issue went on sale. The paper was a huge success and every other week Emersonians eagerly mobbed the newspaper stand for their copy of the Gazette. Columns such as "Doc's Dope," "Who's Who" and "Merilou's Partyline," became pass words with the students. The newspaper proved a stimulant to the students as they were invited to write articles for the paper or challenge any article appearing in any issue.

As usual, the staff had their worries, but always ready to help and direct the students was Miss Beeler, the newspaper's adviser. To help overcome the lack of funds, the staff sponsored dances, parties, and sold advertisements. The staff helped to sponsor the Gary High School Press Conference, and several members found time to attend the NSPA Conference at French Lick Springs, Indiana.

Sold The Emersonian

The sales staff, consisting of a group of seniors chosen by the annual staff, do much of the campaigning and all the subscription writing for the yearbook. This year fourteen seniors, directed by Dick Carrabine as sales manager, sold the necessary quota of 1949 Emersonians.

To start the sales campaign, the yearly pep session was held in the auditorium. The mistress of ceremonies, Delores Spann, introduced the staff and the sponsor, Mrs. Madel. The editor and Mrs. Madel gave brief pep talks. The fourteen seniors who were to sell the book were introduced to the students, and Miss Newton, the guest speaker, told the students of the value of owning a memory book, and encouraged the students to purchase an annual.

As soon as the pep session ended, the campaign went into full swing. Strains of "Buy your '49 Emersonian now," and "Remember the first payment on your annual is due October 29," echoed through the halls day after day. After all the sales books had been checked the staff announced that 465 yearbooks had been sold.

Although each member of the sales staff worked hard to sell the '49 Emersonian, no one was able to outsell Marty Aznar. Marty was tops with 112 sales, and he received a free annual. Eunice Eddy came in second with 76 sales, and her name was printed in gold on her yearbook.

Publishers Of Emer's Story

Every day at 1:15 in the art room, a group of "eager beavers" were seen hard at work making layouts, checking the budget, and writing and rewriting copy. Yes, it was the annual staff hard at work. Although the staff wasn't as large as in previous years, and most of the members were lacking in yearbook experience, they managed, under the direction of Mrs. Madel, to learn the techniques of yearbook production.

After the sales campaign was well under way, the production of the '49 Emersonian began. The first job was to choose a theme and to make a working dummy for the engraver's and staff's use. The jolly character Emer, who represents the spirit of Emerson School, was chosen, and the students went to work with the development of the theme and the scheduling of pictures. After the engraving deadlines were met and the pictures were almost all taken, the difficult job of writing copy was begun. Each staff member participated in this job.

Besides trying to meet engraving and printing deadlines, the staff had to worry about the budget. To help raise money, candy and taffy apples were sold to the students after school, and extra pictures were sold in the art room.

Although most of the staff's time was spent in producing the yearbook, they managed to sponsor the yearbook dance at which the senior personalities were chosen, and were hosts, with the help of the newspaper staff, to all the Gary newspaper and annual staffs at the annual Gary High School Press Conference. During the Thanksgiving weekend, Mrs. Madel and four staff members attended the NSPA Conference at French Lick, Indiana.

The craftsmen who helped produce the '49 Emersonian were:

Paul Vincent's Studio
Indianapolis Engraving Company
DeLaney Printing Company
